Investigative Report on Jia Qinglin

Committee to Investigate the Crimes of China's "610 Office" in the Persecution of Falun Gong

(August 21, 2004, revised on October 26, 2005)

Background

Beijing is one of China's municipalities that have the worst records in the persecution of Falun Gong. By October 25, 2005, 75 practitioners have been verified as being tortured to death in Beijing, which has the highest death tolls among the municipalities.<sup>i</sup> Among them, 49 practitioners died or the cause of their death happened before November 2002, when Jia Qinglin was in charge. Since some of the practitioners persecuted to death in Beijing were from other provinces or cities, and their deaths were reported in their original cities, the actual verified death toll in Beijing is much higher than this number. As the secretary of Chinese Communist Party Beijing Committee from 1997 to November 2002, Jia Qinglin is responsible for the torture, torture to death, and other crimes against Falun Gong practitioners in Beijing during his term.

Jia Qinglin<sup>ii</sup>, Former Secretary of Beijing's municipal CCP committee (1997 - November 2002). Member of the Politburo, Secretary of Beijing's municipal CCP committee, Mayor of Beijing (1997-1999); Member of the Politburo, Secretary of Beijing's municipal CCP committee (1999 - November 2002); Elected member of the standing committee of the Politburo (November 2002); Elected Chairman of the Tenth Chinese People's Political Consultative Conference at its first session in March 2003.

Jia Qinglin has long been considered Jiang Zemin's trusted follower. He survived the notorious "Yuanhua Case" thanks to Jiang's vigorous protection. On the political front, Jia treads on the heels of Jiang's policy of cracking down on Falun Gong. On July 20, 1999, Jiang's regime launched the crackdown of Falun Gong. Jia immediately voiced his support<sup>iii</sup>, convening an enlarged conference of the standing committee of the municipal CCP and required that the CCP organizations and members at all levels have a clear-cut stand and resolutely throw themselves into this political battle against Falun Gong<sup>iv</sup>. Jia repeatedly stressed the battle against Falun Gong during the sessions of the Municipal Political Consultative Conference<sup>v</sup> and the People's Congress<sup>vi</sup> and attacked Falun Gong at every opportunity. Jia took the lead in meeting with the National Anti-Falun Gong touring delegation to boost the morale<sup>vii</sup>. He attended the conferences that commended the advanced units and individuals in fighting against Falun Gong and gave speeches to encourage those who were directly involved in the persecution<sup>viii</sup>. Jia also provided specific guidelines to the investigation and research of the Falun Gong issue in Beijing<sup>ix</sup>. In addition, Jia attacked Falun Gong at various meetings such as the Working Conference on Beijing's Political-legal Issues<sup>x</sup>, Working Conference on Religions<sup>xi</sup>, Beijing's CCP Representatives Conference<sup>xii</sup>, Beijing celebration of the CCP 80 birthday meeting<sup>xiii</sup>, and other occasions such as when he conveyed the greetings to the working forces from the public security and business society<sup>xiv</sup>. At the mobilizing conference for the Sixteenth National Congress, Jia made the persecution of Falun Gong one of Beijing's top five priorities<sup>xv</sup>. Jia also actively participated in the persecution of female Falun Gong practitioners<sup>xvi</sup>. At the opening ceremony of the First Session of the Tenth Chinese People's Political Consultation Conference (CPPCC) – the first meeting Jia presided over after he was elected Chairman of the CPPCC, Li Guixian gave a speech that contained anti-Falun Gong sections, breaking CPPCC's tradition under Li Ruihuan's leadership<sup>xvii</sup>.

They must draw a clear line to consciously separate themselves from "Falun Gong" organizations in every aspect: political, ideological, organizational, and personal conduct. They must consciously return to the correct stand of the Party. Second of all, Party members must pay close attention, strengthen Party leadership, and establish responsibility. Party Secretary will be the first line administrator who will personally participate, intervene, be totally responsible for the consolidated Party education of individual district, department and unit, and be totally responsible for the ideological transformation of Party members, cadres, and people at large who practiced "Falun Gong." Third of all was to intensify the propaganda education and media direction effort. Fourth of all was to strengthen the Party build up during the struggle.
