Investigator: Oh, yes. I just want to ask, if they come to your place, if the surgery can be arranged, how long it will take?

Lang Ren: If there is nothing unexpected, it probably takes two or three weeks, more or less.

Investigator: Oh, two to three weeks, that's good. Another question is about your current liver sources...

Lang Ren: The phone signal here is not very good, please keep talking.

Investigator: Ah, are the liver sources you are using now still those from Falun Gong (practitioners), this type of healthy donors, right?

Lang Ren: Yes, yes, they are all from donation.

Investigator: Healthy and normal! May I ask another question? Regarding the liver sources, do you take the donors directly to the hospital for onsite excisions and simultaneous transplantation? Or do you take the organs from outside of the hospital and take them back for transplantation?

Lang Ren: Both cases would take place. Some are produced within our hospital, some are from other hospitals.

Investigator: Ah, all right, that's OK. That's fine. So, when is relatively convenient to contact you?

Lang Ren: I usually have a lot of operations. You ask him to call or text me in advance, because I'm afraid that I won't be able to answer the phone during operations. I am afraid that he won't find me without appointment.

Investigator: When would be a relatively convenient time for you in general?

Lang Ren: You tell him, tell your relative to make an appointment with me directly, call me or send me a text message, okay? I will give him a time by then.

Investigator: Okay, that's good, that's good. Since your phone signal is not very good, let me repeat, he has liver cirrhosis...

Lang Ren: Got it, 45 years old, liver cirrhosis. I got it. How did you get to know me?

Investigator: A friend recommended you to me. He told me to come to your hospital. In addition, I heard that you have a green channel, which may be even faster, so we hope to come to your place.

Lang Ren: You let your patient contact me, okay?

Investigator: Ok, that's fine. You mean that surgery can be arranged in about two weeks, right?

Lang Ren: More or less, more or less, more or less.

Investigator: OK, the donors, are the type of normal healthy donors of Falun Gong (practitioners), right?

Lang Ren: Right, right, that's right, you're right.

Investigator: All right, alright, that's fine. We will end our conversation here, thank you.

Lang Ren: All right.

Investigator: Good, good, goodbye!

Lang Ren: Goodbye!
