Translation

Doctor: Hello!

Investigator: Hello! Is this the Third Xiangya Hospital of the Central South University?

Doctor: Yes, yes.

Investigator: Ah, I'm from Yiyang. One of my friends would like to get liver transplant surgery done. Are you still doing it now?

Doctor: Yeah, we are. For that...for that, you have to wait, eh, wait in line...got it?

Investigator: Wait in line. So do we do a lot of liver transplants?

Doctor: Yes, yes.

Investigator: Oh. So roughly how long, roughly how long do we need to wait? He wants to ask about it. If it doesn't take long, he will come directly to your hospital to get it done.

Doctor: Um.

Investigator: Is the wait time usually okay, relatively short? Because you do so many of them.

Doctor: Yeah, yeah.

Investigator: Here's one more question for you: another friend of mine would like to do a kidney transplant. Can you do that as well?

Doctor: We are doing both, both live and kidney transplant surgeries.

Investigator: Ah, you do both. So you also do lots of kidney transplants?

Doctor: Yes, 200 to 300 kidney transplants per year.

Investigator: Kidney transplants? So you do fewer liver transplants than kidney transplants?

Doctor: As many.

Investigator: So, you do as many as 200 to 300 liver transplants, too?

Doctor: Yes, yes.

Investigator: Oh.

Doctor: Maybe you should call the clinic for more information, all right?

Investigator: So, you do 200 to 300 liver transplants, as well as 200 to 300 kidney transplants, right?

Doctor: Correct.

Investigator: Okay, okay. I will pass the info to my friend. Which director would come to the clinic?

Doctor: They take turns every day. The clinic doctors rotate.

Investigator: Okay. Thank you! Okay. Goodbye!
