Nurse: Hello, how are you?

Investigator: Hi, hello! Is this Hepatobiliary Surgery at Beijing YouAn Hospital? Is it?

Nurse: Yes.

Investigator: Oh, hi, hello. One of my relatives was diagnosed with end-stage cirrhosis in Chengde...

Nurse: Would you like to come for a consultation here?

Investigation: No, not just a consultation.

Nurse: This is the inpatient service.

Investigator: I know, not just a consultation. We'd like to come to have a transplant surgery here at your hospital. Let me tell you, one of my relatives from Beijing University told me that Doctor Wang Menglong, Director Wang, is in the second laboratory of Hepatobiliary Surgery.

Nurse: Yes.

Investigator: He asked me to contact Director Wang.

Nurse: Do you have his phone number?

Investigator: Let me see, because I called his number but was never able to get through. Could you please help me check what his current number is? Could you please help me check?

Nurse: Hello?

Investigator: Ah, ah.

Nurse: Does your number start with 8399?

Investigator: Uh, 8399, yes, next?

Nurse: 7169.

Investigator: 83997167, what is this number?

Nurse: This is Director Wang's office number.

Investigator: Oh, Director Wang, great. But he is not in the office today, is he?

Nurse: This is the only way to find him, because his office is far away from here.

Investigator: Oh, well, may I ask if Director Wang currently does the surgeries himself, does he?

Nurse: Yes, yes.

Nurse: Listen, you can only have a consultation with him because the inpatient service here is at full capacity.

Investigator: Oh, you have a shortage of beds, right now?

Nurse: Yes. Correct.

Investigator: Should we get in the queue? Right now, should we get in the queue?

Nurse: You must call to ask him. If you keep asking me these things, I cannot help you. None of us as nurses have the authority to reserve a bed for you, but the doctors do, okay?

Investigator: Okay. Okay.

Nurse: Yes, please call that number and talk to him directly, okay?

Investigator: Okay, okay, thank you so much! Thanks, all right.

Nurse: All right.

Investigator: All right. Thanks!
