Investigator: Hello, hello, is this Transplant Program at the Second Hospital of Shandong University? Kidney Transplant?

Nurse: Ah, yes, how can I help you?

Investigator: Because I have an urgent case, my husband wants to be transferred to your hospital for a kidney transplant. Is there a doctor on duty?

Nurse: Ah, do you have any questions to ask?

Investigator: He needs to get a kidney transplant done. We don't have any relatives to donate, but have to wait for a kidney from somewhere else.

Nurse: He needs to get the tissue typing done first. After that, the director will tell you what to do next.

Investigator: Which director should I go to?

Nurses: Our Chief Director. That's Director Wang, Director Wang Hongwei.

Investigator: Is that Wang Hongwei?

Nurse: Yes.

Investigator: Is Wang Hongwei the lead surgeon when the surgeries are performed?

Nurse: Uh, he should be.

Investigator: In that case, as my case is urgent, I probably need to confirm the wait time. If I could get an approximate estimate, that may help us to figure out if we need to wait in line at other hospitals?

Nurse: We really can't give you an accurate estimate on that, because there are a lot of patients waiting in the hospital. You better discuss with the director about that.

Investigator: Well, okay, then I will bring over the patient's files for Director Wang to take a look first, let Director Wang Hongwei look at them. If he can tell me exactly what the wait time is, or an approximate estimate, I will decide then. Is that okay?

Nurse: You can decide for yourself at that time.

Investigator: Okay...that's fine. There won't be a vacant bed available when we get him transferred, will there?

Nurse: You can get him admitted into the hospital first. I mean for whatever you need to do before you get in the queue. There are many patients waiting in line, but that doesn't mean there are no beds available.

Investigator: Oh.

Nurse: Can you understand what I mean? The key is that he doesn't need to be hospitalized at the beginning, as things like his tissue typing can be done at the outpatient clinic.

Investigator: Oh, is that so?

Nurse: Uh, yeah.

Investigator: Okay, I got it. Thank you.

Nurse: Okay, bye!

Investigator: Okay, bye!
