Translation

Nurse: Hello. How are you? This is Urology Surgery.

Investigator: Hello there. Is this (Nurse: Hello.) Urology Surgery at China-Japan Friendship Hospital?

Nurse: Yes.

Investigator: Hey. May I ask if you do kidney transplants there?

Nurse: We do!

Investigator: You do, right? So...(Nurse: Uh.) are there many patients waiting in line at your hospital? Could it be done very soon after going there?

Nurse: You'll need to get in the queue. You'll have to go to the outpatient clinic first.

Investigator: Huh, so at the clinic (Nurse: Go there first ...), which director is there available?

Nurse: Liu Naibo.

Investigator: Director Liu Naibo. Is he (Nurse: Yes.) the one who does lots of cases at this hospital right now? At your inpatient service?

Nurse: He does a lot!

Investigator: He does a lot, huh. Oh, so you (Nurse: Ah.) mean the wait time won't be too long, right?

Nurse: You need to go to the clinic first. It depends.

Investigator: Well, as you said, now a lot of cases are done at your hospital, so can you do several hundred cases a year? Several hundreds are done annually? If you can do so many, then I will wait...

Nurse: We can't do that many.

Investigator: How many then? Approximately, how many can you do? Do you do a lot, as compared with other hospitals?

Nurse: I'm not sure how many cases other hospitals do. We've just done more than one hundred cases this year.

Investigator: One hundred cases. Huh.

Investigator: So how long usually do your patients need to stay in hospital until they get discharged, like after their operations are done?

Nurse: It all depends. You'd better go to the clinic. This phone number is for ER here.

Investigator: Oh, I'm calling the ER number. Alright, bye now!

Nurse: Umm, umm, bye!
